Dear Clients and Friends:

We are all making adjustments to our daily lives in light of the impact of the coronavirus (COVID-19), and the guidance and adjustments being implemented and recommended by Federal, State and local officials as well as professional health organizations.

Miller, Miller & Canby is committed to continuing to provide the highest level of professional services during this time, but we also place our highest priority on the safety and health of you, our clients and customers, as well as the attorneys and staff that comprise the Miller, Miller & Canby family. We would like to take this opportunity to share some of the measures we believe will help us to continue to meet your needs and we hope that you will take them into consideration when choosing how to interact with us.

Miller, Miller & Canby has always made advanced technology a part of our firm's culture, and we have a platform for facilitating communications with clients, whether our attorneys are located at our office, at home or some other location. While we actively monitor adjustments that local governments, educational institutions and other businesses are implementing in response to public health considerations - such as remote work, tele-conferencing and on-line educational instruction - rest assured that Miller, Miller & Canby is capable and prepared to engage in such activities as warranted or requested by our clients. While we continue to operate on a "business as usual" basis, we do encourage clients to consider whether in-person meetings, whether held at our office or other locations, are necessary when teleconferencing or video conferencing options are available.

We have also treated client information with the highest degree of confidentiality, and our technology platform allows for the transmission of encrypted documents or other information with our attorneys. We always encourage clients to use this means of communication to protect the privacy of their information. If you require any assistance with utilizing this secure upload we are available to assist.

Miller, Miller & Canby remains committed to staying current on developments and recommendations from government and public health officials that impact on our work-place practices in order to provide the safest environment for our employees and you, while continuing to afford the highest level of professional service to our clients and friends.

Thank you, as always, for your continued trust in Miller, Miller & Canby.
