At the end of December, the Maryland Department of Assessments and Taxation (SDAT) issued new Assessment Notices to owners of one-third of all commercial and residential properties in Maryland. For instance, in Montgomery County, commercial properties in Silver Spring and Wheaton were reassessed. In Frederick County, commercial properties in Urbana and parts of Ijamsville and Frederick were reassessed. In Prince George's County, commercial properties in Greenbelt, College Park, Hyattsville, Oxon Hill, Temple Hills and Riverdale were reassessed.

Property owners have 45 days from the date of the Assessment Notice to challenge these new assessments. Based on the notices we have seen this cycle, the appeal deadline is February 11, 2019, although this could vary depending upon the notice date. The "first-level" appeal takes place at the local Assessment Office. If the assessor refuses to reduce the assessment, the owner may file a further appeal to the county's Property Tax Assessment Appeals Board (PTAAB). This Board will consider the evidence and issue a written decision, usually within two weeks. If the property owner is still dissatisfied, another appeal may be filed to the Maryland Tax Court.

Miller, Miller & Canby has been challenging the assessments of various types of properties in Maryland for more than 30 years and has obtained substantial reductions in real property assessments for our clients. Our litigation attorneys regularly represent clients before the local Assessment Office, PTAAB and the Maryland Tax Court. We have successfully appealed the assessments on office buildings, retail stores, senior living centers, warehouses, industrial sites, casinos, apartment buildings and cemeteries. Let us help you reduce your Maryland property assessments in 2019.
